Remotepro – NRGdash from Carel

Posted by: Cooling India Posted date: July 14, 2015

Energy saving is becoming an increasingly important. The ability to quickly check trends in total energy consumption, analysing the variables that affects system performance, is a need shared by everyone operating in HVAC/R. Comparative analysis between systems with similar operating features and structures is essential in being able to quickly identify energy expense factors and adopt suitable countermeasures. Reducing energy consumption means reducing running and operating costs, thus adding extra value to the solutions supplied. Value that translates into competitive advantage on the market and signifies care for the environment. Carel offers energy saving solutions that exploit control logic developed throughout its extensive experience in the refrigeration and air-conditioning business. The focus is increasingly shifting from control of individual systems to all sites managed. This is where Carel, through its new remotepro – NRGdash solution, can provide a response to all these needs, representing a partner not only as regards technology but also value-added solutions, allowing customers or partners to in turn develop solutions and proposals that generate new business.
